Dear <<First Name>>

We hope you're coping with the weather – currently a bit overcast, but a major heatwave predicted! In other news...

Perhaps we're biased, but Yorkshire and Humber is a wonderful place to be involved in museums and there are lots of opportunities to meet colleagues in this edition via an MDY Forum, joining a meeting with YEMP or YAMN or becoming a Board member for the FED.

Our Elevenses continue to be really popular and we encourage everyone to join the final session before the summer break, where we are joined by Inclusive Boards to discuss how MDY is reflecting on practice.

Finally, do make sure you take a look at Elsecar 1800: Victorian Elsecar Revealed!

Future Fed: We Need You!

New Board Members Wanted Application deadline: 31 July

The Fed is recruiting new Board members and has a list of priority roles that they need to fill in order to be able to continue providing their membership and training offer in the long term. However, they are also interested in hearing from anyone with skills and experience outside of this list, or who would like to volunteer with the Board in a non-official capacity.

If you are looking for a good career development opportunity, or want to share your existing skills and experience to the benefit of your peers, find out how to apply at: www.yhfed.org.uk/opportunities.

Your Fortnight Ahead

MDY Elevenses Thursday 21 July

How can we do better? Improving our practice when sharing difficult and sensitive content within the museum sector

Join us with equality, diversity and inclusion specialists Inclusive Boards to hear about and discuss steps that MDY are taking to provide a safer and more inclusive environment for professional development, for people in the museum sector.

As museums work towards improving their interpretation of diverse histories, we need to be aware of how and if we share some sensitive material, including historic racist objects and images from our collections. How can we improve the ways that we talk within the sector, as well as with audiences, about content that may cause a powerful emotional response?

We'll talk about learning from mistakes, improving our awareness of potentially triggering content, and what that means for providing a safe workplace environment. This session will be useful for you to understand MDY's own developing practice and to explore how this may apply in your museum's own work. We will also discuss triggering caused by racist content and other issues.

What's Happening in Your Region?

Elsecar 1800: Victorian Elsecar Revealed!

Barnsley Museum have launched a fly-through reconstruction of the 19th century Elsecar industrial village. The stunning fly-through is a digital rendering showing Elsecar and the surrounding area at its industrial peak around 1880 with ironworks, collieries, canals, railways and settlements all visible.

Prepared by Barnsley Museum and produced by digital creator Martin Moss of Dextra Digital, it is based on research carried out by Historic England as part of the Elsecar Heritage Action Zone, together with local volunteer historians and experts across the UK, which has transformed our understanding of the importance of Elsecar. It is also a legacy project of the Great Place Wentworth and Elsecar Programme, supported by Arts Council England and the National Lottery Heritage Fund.

This course will explore the specific tensions and challenges that digital storytelling can pose. It will focus on the many advantages that museums and collections offer in this space.

Two members from each participating museum should attend to ensure that they are able to enact and embed change more effectively within their organisation. Ideally the second member of staff or volunteer would be involved in delivery of the digital activities of the museum.
